Dear FCC:

Please, for once, do something that will benefit the American people and not favor large corporations. Please, keep the Internet open and keep net neutrality in place.

If you eliminate net neutrality the telephone and cable companies will profit mightily, and the people will once again be the losers.

This is a very short letter but written for a very important reason. Please keep the good of the vast majority of people in mind when making your ruling. The Internet should be open and free, not controlled by a few for their gain.

Sincerely,
